Mainie Jellett (1897 - 1944), Abstract Composition, c. 1935, Collection: Crawford Art Gallery, Cork. Illustration by Annie Forrester

This painting by the Irish artist Mainie Jellett is an example of a style of painting called Cubism. This style involves giving lots of different perspectives of an object in one painting and often using flat, geometric shapes like rectangles, semi-circles and triangles. How many shapes can you see in Mainie Jellett's painting? How many colours can you use?
